HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT,

The science of Medicine has never before produced any remedy that can be compared to this wonderful Ointment, as it curer inveterate skin diseases peculiar to the climates of India and China. It is the true friend of the Soldier and Civilian, as certain old sores can be removed by it that cannot be conquered by any other treatment.

NOTIFICATION.

THE TEA TRADE AT CANTON.

HE following Notification has been issned by Her Britannic Majesty's Consul at Canton:-Notification

No. 2.

BRITISH CONSULATE.

CANTON, February 26, 1869.

Representations having been made to the uindersigned with reference to the difficulties experienced in obtaining the due fulfilment of contracts through the failure of the Teamen and Brokers to supply Teas in bulk according to the muster upon which they were purchased, he brought the matter, in conjunction with the Consul for the United States, before the Chinese authorities, with a view to devising some mode by which the evil complained of might be recchasers themselves, by the refusal of the Teas if they were inferior to the samples; but difficulties interpose in following this course, such as Tonnage having been engaged, advices having gone forward, and others unnecessary to mention. Moreover, as the rejection of a chop was little likely to cause loss or damage to the Teaman owing to market fluctuations, no unwillingness was felt on his part to such a result; in fact, it was an encouragement to fraudulent practices. The undersigned was therefore of opinion that compelling the fulfilment of contracts or enforcing what is termed an "equitable cut" for inferior quality, were necessary measures, if trade was to be conducted on anything like a sound basis; he therefore directed his attention to devising a mode of arbitration or proceeding by means of which the expenses and delay of a Chinese court of law might be avoided. It is not worth while to detail the particulars of the proposition he made, as, after long negociations, it was rejected by the Tea guild, who met it by a counter proposition that if Tea when delivered was not equal to muster, it should be rejected. Seeing that no amicable arrangement could be arrived at, the undersigned, in conjunction with the Consul for the United States, requested the Chinese authorities to notify to the Teamen, brokers, and others, that the utmost rigour of the law would be enforced in all cases of fraudulent practices, and he hopes that the Proclamation which has been issued accordingly, a copy of translation of which is annexed, will have the effect intended, by shewing the parties against whom it is directed that they will not escape with impunity from the consequences of their misdeeds.

(Signed) D. B. ROBERTSON,

Proclamation by CHEN, Magistrate of the Nanhai District, and YANG, Magistrate of the P'wangyu District :-

We have received instructions from his Honor the Financial Commissioner, embodying orders from his Excellency the Viceroy in tenor as follow:-

"The Viceroy received a communication on the 20th August last from the British Consul, Mr Robertson, to the effect that he has been addressed by the British merchants at Canton with reference to the great loss and detriment to their trade caused by the inferior qualities of the Teas ampplied by the Teamen, notwithstanding their contracts to deliver Teas according to muster. The practice appears to be that the Teabrokers take round samples of Teas, and the merchants after inspecting and tasting their qualities and arranging for the price to be paid for the chop, with the weight in piculs and the time of delivery, engage tonnage by vessels proceeding to England and when the Teas agreed for arrive in Canton, they are found on inspection to be not only far inferior in quality to the sample supplied, but largely mixed with what are called 'lie-feas,' or leaves of plants of all kinds prepared to imitate the genuine tea. This has now become the regular practice, and it is necessary that some measures should be taken to put an end to the frauds which are thus perpetrated. He therefore urges that measures be devised with this end in view, etc., etc. The U. S. Consul, Mr King, has also made a similar representation. On receipt of the foregoing the Viceroy ordains that a notification be issued to the Tea dealers with injunctions to be laid upon them for their obedience."

The Magistrates being in receipt of the above instructions, have to issue a notification in pursuance of their tenor; and we do therefore accordingly proclaim for the instruction of all members of the Tea Frade, that it is an obvious duty to make honesty and good faith the guiding principles of commerce with foreign merchants. and that to cherish fraudulent designs can in no wise be permitted. They should, moreover, bear in mind that the bulk of the Tea export has been confined of late years to the ports of Fukien, whilst the local trade in Canton teas itself has at the same time languished in an unusual degree. If fraudulent practices in the way of false packing be further persisted in, not only will those known to the world. No preparation is so guilty of such acts be liable to prosecution suitable to the climates of India and China and thus incur the danger of arrest and of as this fine and invigorating medicine. It actions for compensation, but the trade is particularly adapted to the constitution of European ladies, as it is never failing in its effects in all diseases peculiar to females, still more remote. It is not difficult to while those who are attenuated by the de perceive on which side the real interest of bilitating effects of the above climates will the dealer actually lies. After the issue of find in this wonderful remedy a kind of ta-lisman whereby they may insure a restora-tion to robust health.

this Notification, if the traders referred to fail to amend their ways, and still continue indulging in fraudulent practices, on complaint being lodged by foreign merchants, they shall not only be required to make compensation, but shall further be visited with severe punishment, under the statute for assimilating the offence of obtaining after all other means have failed, all money under false pretences with the crime wounds, sores, ulcers, and also the most of robbery Be ye careful, therefore, not to disobey, and thus to involve yourselves in trouble. Let all tremblingly obey. A special Proclamation.

SUPREME COURT

The prosecution in Regina v. Saint having filed a petition for leave to appeal to the Privy Council against the Chief Justice's indoment on the Crown demorrer to defendant's pleas, defendant applied and obtained a rule nist calling on th Crown to show cause why the petition should not be discharged. The rule was made returnable for this morning, when the argument came on. The Attorney General appeared for the Crown, instructed by Mr. Hazeland, Crown Solicitor: Mr. Pollard also took his reat at the table, but not "in form," being wigless and robeless

He would not to into the question of the irregularit of the proceedings arising out of this rule, for there was no locus standi in the matter. He would not, however, enter into that question, on account of other circumstances in the case. No doubt, the regulations framed for appeals to the Privy Council contemplated only actions of a civil nature, where the dispute involved a sum of over £500 1 but at the same time the Privy Council reserved the right of entertaining every sort of appeal, and there were records to show that appeals in criminal cases had been made to it from British foreign possessions. Hitherto it bad been the undoubted practice than an appellant in a Colony could approach the Privy Council through an Attorney General, but that where the Attorney General himself appealed, the usual course was to

HUXLEY ON THE PHYSICAL BASIS OF LIFE. (Pall Mall Budget.)

In the new number of the Fortnightly may venture to prophecy many readers and much disquisition. It is an exposition of the physical basis or matter of life-of the one kind of matter which is common to all living things, binding Privy Council, nor would be burden it with them together, in their endless diversities, by a physical as well as an ideal unity. In the following paragraphs we show what this exposition is; but we plant. as his appears almost shocking to common sense. What community of faculty can there be between the brightly-coloured lichen, which so nearly resembles a mere mineral incrustation of the bare rock on which it grows, and the painter, to whom it is instinct with beauty, or the botanist, whom it feeds with knowledge? If we regard substance, or material composition, what hidden bond can confiect the flower which a girl wears in her hair and the blood which courses through her vouthful veins? or what is there in common between the dense and resisting mass of the oak, or the strong fabric of the tortoise; and those broad disks of glassy jelly which may be seen pulsating through the waters of a calm sea, but which drain away to mere films in the hand which raises them out of their element? Such objections as these must arise in the mind of every one His Lordship; I understand that the ponders, for the first time, upon conception of a single physical basis of life underlying all the diversities of vital existence; but Mr Huxley proposes to demonstrate that a threefold unity. namely, a unity of power, or faculty, a unity of form, and a unity of substantial composition-does pervade the whole living world.

To illustrate his case, Mr Huxley goes

o the common nettle:— You are doubtless aware that the common ettle owes its stinging property to the inumerable stiff and needle-like, though exquisitely delicate, hairs which cover urface. Each stinging needle tapers from broad base to a slender summit, which, though rounded at the end, is of such microscopic fineness that it readily penetrates. and breaks off in the skin. The whole hair consists of a very delicate outer case of wood closely applied to the inner surface of which is a layer of semi-fluid matter, full of innumerable granules of extreme minuteseemed to have found it out and to have | ness. for a reply to this question. If a drop of blood be drawn by pricking one's finger, and a sufficiently high microscopic power, there will be seen among the innummerable mul titude of little, circular discoidal bodies, or corpuscles, which float in it and give it its colour, a comparatively small number of colourless corpuscles, of somewhat larger much eloquence, so much of his body size and very irregular shape. Mr Huxley declares at this point that protoplasm, simple or nucleated, is the formal basis of all life. It is the clay of the potter: which, bake it and paint it as he will, remains clay, separated by artifice, and not by nature, from the commonest brick or sun-dried clod. living powers are cognate, and all living forms are fundamentally of one character. The researches of the chemist have revealed a no less striking uniformity of material composition in living matter.

In perfect strictness, it is true the chemical investigation can tell us little c nothing, directly, of the composition of living matter, inasmuch as such matter must needs die in the act of analysis-and upon this very obvious ground, objections. which I confess seem to me to be some what frivolous, have been raised to the drawing of any conclusions whatever respecting the composition of actually living matter, from that of the dead matter of life, which alone is accessible to us. objectors of this class do not seem to reflect that it is also, in strictness, true that we know nothing about the composition of any body whatever, as it is. The statement that a crystal of calc-spar consists of carbonate of lime is quite true, if we only mean that, by appropriate processes, it may be resolved into carbonic acid and quick-If you pass the same carbonic acid over the very quicklime thus obtained, you will obtain carbonate of lime again it will not be calc-spar, nor anything like Can it, therefore, be said that chemical analysis teaches nothing about the chemical composition of calc-spar? Such a statement would be absurd; but it is hardly more so than the talk one occasionally hears about the uselessness of applying the results of chemical analysis to the living bodies which have yielded them. One fact, at any rate, is out of reach of such refinements, and this is, that all the forms of protoplasm which have yet been examined contain the four elements. have similarly towards several re-agents. "Debemur morti nos nostraque," with a profounder meaning than the Roman poet attached to that melancholy line. Under whatever disguise it takes refuge, whether fungus or oak, worm or man, the living protoplasm not only ultimately dies and is resolved into its mineral and lifeless constituents, but is always dying, and, strange as the paradox may sound, could not live unless it died.

All work implies waste, and the work of life results, directly or indirectly, in the waste of protoplasm. Every word uttered by a speaker costs him some physical loss; and in the strictest sense, burns that others may have light—so expenditure cannot go on for ever. into that living matter of life which is appropriate to itself. Therefore, in seeking for the origin of protoplasm, we must eventually turn to the vegetable world. The fluid containing carbonic acid, water, and ammonia, which offers such a Burmecide feast to the animal is a table richly spread to multitudes plants; and, with a due supply of only such materials, many a plant will not only maintain itself in vigour, but grow an multiply until it has increased a millionfold, or a million million-fold, the quantity of protoplasm which it originally possessed in this way building up the matter of life to an indefinite extent, from the common entered into and took possession of the oxide of hydrogen as soon as it was formed, and then guided the aqueous particles to their places in the facets of the crystal, or amongst the leaflets of the hoar-frost. Is the case in any way changed when carbonic acid, water, and ammonia disappear, and in their place under the influence of pre-existing living protoplasm, an equivalent weight of the matter of life makes its appearance?

It is true that there is no sort of parity between the properties of the components and the properties of the resultant, but neither was there in the case of the water. It is also true that what I have spoken of as the influence of pre-existing living matter is something quite unintelligible; but does anybody quite comprehend the modus operandi of an electric spark, which traverses a mixture of oxygen and hydrogen?

What justification is there, then, for the assumption of the existence in the living matter of a something which has no representative or correlative in the not living matter which gave rise to it? What is the difference between the conception of life as the product of a certain disposition of material molecules, and the old notion of an Archæus governing and directing blind matter within each living body, except this -- that here, as elsewhere, matter and law have devoured spirit and spontaneity? And as surely as every future grows out of past and present, so will the physiology of the future gradually extend the realm of matter and law until it is coextensive with knowledge, with feeling, with action. of this great truth weighs like a

The advancing tide of matter threatens to drown their souls; the tightening grasp of law impedes their freedom; they are alarmed lest man's moral nature be debased by the increase of his . . . But, after all, what do we know of this terrible "matter," except as a name for the unknown and hypothetical cause of states of our own consciousness? And what do we know of that 'spirit" over whose threatened extinction by matter a great lamentation is arising. like that which was heard at the death of Pan, except that it is also a name for an unknown and hypothetical cause, or condition, of states of consciousness? In other words, matter and spirit are but names for the imaginary substrata of groups of natural phenomena. In itself it is of little moment whether we express the phenomena of matter in terms of spirit; or the phenomena of spirit, in terms of matter; matter may be regarded as a form of thought, thought may be regarded as a property of matter-each statement has a certain relative truth. But with a view to the progress of science, the materialistic terminolgy is in every way to be preferred. For it connects thought with the other phenomena of the universe, and suggests inquiry into the nature of those physical conditions, or concomitants of thought, which are more or less accessible to us, and a knowledge of which may, in future, help us to exercise the same kind of control over the world of thought as we already possess in respect of the

But if you will brin me's dozen or twenty of the very best cigars you can find, by the time I have finished them my plans will be completed. And so he puffed away the whole night drawing up plans, and cogitating, and calculating chances, and in the morning the pile of cigars was gone, and the battle of hiloh was a predetermined event."

Hor two men who smoked so much, none could have expoured less than Monk and Grant: neither used a word more than was necessary to express his meaning. December 27, 1867. HE TREATY PORTS OF CHINA & JAPAN," AND "NOTES AND QUERIES ON CHINA AND JAPAN."

EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS.

From the "Straits Times," July 27, 1868.) Some time ago we had occasion to remark upon the progress that Literature as represented by the Press had made and was making in the East, and our attention has again been called to the subject by the receint of a Hongkong publication which deserves some notice and which we have much pleasure in introducing to the knowledge of our readers. We allude to Notes and Queries on (hina and Japan, published monthly by Mr Saint, the proprietor of the China Mail newspaper. This publication is well printed on good paper, and in size and shape is very like its well-known namesake or prototype at home, and is equally a mine containing very curious and useful ture, history, manners and customs of the Chinese and in a less degree of the Japanese. It says a good deal for the extent and Testimonials from all parts of the World. Esti- stability of the footing of Europeans in China, that such a publication as this should be established and conducted with apparently successful vigour. The publication is altogether a very interesting one, and wishing it every success, information regarding the language, litera-we commend it to the attention and support (From the 'Friend of India," June 4, 1868.) We acknowledge with thanks the receipt of the numbers for the current year of "Notes and Queries," a most deserving Anglo-Chinese monthly, edited by Mr N. B. Dennys, whose "Treaty Ports of China and Japan" are so well known. From the names attached to the "Notes" we can see that the contributors include some of the best Chinese scholars in the East. Its interest is not confined to China, and it will generally to all who are interested in oriental antiquities. It deserves to be better known in India. (From the "London Examiner," May be of valuable assistance to all scholars, who have directed their attention towards the subject of Buddhism and its literature, and Newspapers, Books, Type. Ink, Presses. of China and Japan"] is intended as a Miscellaneous.

Peking, Yedo, Hongkong, and Macao. has been carefully compiled and edited by Mr N. B. Dennys; and the elaborate mans and plans, with which the work abounds, considerably enhance its value. * * * We have thus given in outline some of devoted to Canton, as a specimen of the whole volume. Other chapters treating of Macao, Formosa, Ningpo, Shanghae, and the remainder of the treaty ports, we can only enumerate. The pages describing Peking, the capital, are so interesting, and contain so much that is new to European readers respecting its history, public buildings, and general characteristics, that we would fain transfer them to our columns. A complete and intelligible plan of the Imperial City and neighbourhood, gives us an accurate notion of the relative position of its divisions, streets, and places.

In the introductory chapter to the notices of the Treaty Corts of Japan will be found a succinct history of that Empire, together with remarks on its government, geography, and limits, which will be found particularly interesting as throwing a considerable light on a part of the world so long entirely, and still comparatively, unknown to Europeans.

The descriptions of Nagasaki, Yedo, Yokohama, and the other Treaty Ports of Japan, are as elaborate and entertaining as those of the Chinese ports. A copious index and a useful appendix containing many hints and much appropriate advice to tra-vellers and others, is also included in the volume. The entire work affords a vast amount of information, pleasantly written, and we doubt not will be perused with interest by many who will never visit the
